Calling All High School Artists

Every child is an artist, of course, but we're thinking especially of high school students who create like breathing, like hope, like possibility, and who might benefit from the 2018 Francis K. Wilcox Emerging Young Artist Scholarship competition. See below for more. Applications are due Friday, June 8.

And if they're not applying for the scholarship? Encourage them anyway and always, along with every young poet, dancer, musician, and actor you know.

Emerging Young Artist application deadline: Friday, June 8

Who is eligible? High school artists who are currently juniors or seniors (including public, private, parochial, and home-schooled students); live or attend school in Chenango, Broome, Cortland, Madison, or Otsego counties; and are interested in careers in the arts.

What do they win? Colorscape provides a booth at the festival on Sept. 8 and 9 where they can exhibit (and sell!) their art. These students are also recognized at the Awards Breakfast Sunday morning of the festival. A cash prize of $350 is given, along with gift certificates for Golden Artist Colors products.

Where do I learn more? An article on our website tells more, and includes links to application information and a FAQ. For questions, contact Peggy Finnegan, Visual Arts Coordinator, at 607-316-3212 or artcolorscope.org.

Awarded art sighting

We were walking down the hallway in the New York State Veterans' Home at Oxford when something caught our eye: a lovely painting and a Colorscape ribbon. We don't know the story behind this piece -- if you do, please tell us! -- but we were warmed from the inside out. Art is ageless.

2018 artist roster

Curious about the art you will see and the artists you will meet this year? Visit the website (link below) to see art from the new and returning artists. If you see a little globe icon under their art image, you can click it to visit their website.

Shown here: art from Zhong-Hua Lu from Cropseyville, NY who will be exhibiting at Colorscape for the first time. We love the gorgeous traditional Chinese brush painting.

The Artists

Found: the Colorscape bus!

She wobbled in high winds, it was a full body experience to manage her manual shifting, and braking required an oof and a prayer, but we loved that beautiful bus. Imagine, then, stumbling on this image in Instagram! @klk_photography11 posted from Auburn Virginia: "This just made my morning. Sunrise, fall and a Volkswagen classic. #groovy #unexpectedfind #photooftheday #volkswagen."

So much gratitude

Colorscape is made possible, in part, by the Broome, Chenango and Otsego Decentralization Program, administered by the Chenango Arts Council and made possible by the New York State Council on the Arts with the support of Governor Andrew Cuomo and the New York State Legislature.
